The latest move in the continuous performance proceedings in the Grand Central-Manusch kegal proceedings in the Grand covering the investments they have made. A glance over its pages reveals the fact that each of the company's seven separate groups of claims, including no less than 107 locations and covering more than 2,000 acres of ground, have been examined and their values estimated with a regard to detail that could only have been done by a man fully awake to the responsibilities attaching to the report that must, should it prove inaccurate or overdrawn, reflect on his professional standing.

The report is altogether too voluminous for it to receive more than passing notice, but to give the shareholders and dea of Mr. Farish's opinion of the mines, a few brief extracts are reproduced. In speaking of the causes that have held back the mines of Beaver county. Mr. Farish says:

ORE-MOVING PROBLEM.

Producers and Smelter Representatives Are Making Slow Headway.

After a full week's sparring between the local mine operators and officials of the American Smelting & Refining company, not a single contract has been made, and it was said yesterday afternoon that pending negotiations were far from being clinched. Manager Jones of the American company said negotiations were progressing with different producers, but nothing touch ing the terms under discussion would

From a man in touch with what is going on, it was learned that the smelt-ing company is insisting on very longtime contracts, some of them ten years and in the cases involving silver-lead ores, a clause is wanted binding the producer to make the smelting company a present of one-third of the value of the silver above 60c an ounce. It is also said that the smelter representatives are holding out for the mine operator down to conditions that will leave him practically without profit on the second-grade ores that he is so anxlous to be able to market.

The producers are known to be very hostile to the proposition of binding themselves for such long-time contracts, and they are unable to see why bey should not receive settlement for cir silver on the basis of its market the no matter what they may be no matter what that may be special stockholders' meeting of the California company scheduled for yesterday at Park City was adjourned to C. D. Hanks et al. for the following lar consideration. A smelter located on your site at Milford would command all the ores of all characters in the districts referred to above, and you have within your own properties all the necessary ores for fluxing purposes. I believe that a large custom smelting works plant could, within one year's time, be run to full capacity on outside ores."

yesterday at Park City was adjourned without action till the 24th. Judge Snyder, who returned last night, said he did not care to discuss the company's affairs in any way. He was moving on proper lines to relieve it of its temporary embarrassment and he would succeed within a few days. Other than that he would say nothing concerning his plans.

After reciting the physical condition of the company's various mines, he draws the following conclusion:
